

“If Jonathan Swift were alive he would steal from Marvin Kitman at every opportunity. Kitman merges satire with history and the horrible reality of present-day politics better than anyone writing in America today.” —John R. MacArthur, publisher of Harper’s Magazine

Gullible’s Travels

A Comical History of the Trump Era

By Marvin Kitman

Political punditry is hard work—just ask Marvin Kitman, a former presidential candidate and Newsday TV critic who took on the heroic task of chronicling the entirety of Trump’s presidency to date. But don’t be fooled; this is no ordinary diary of a raging lunatic. This is a political diary of a raging lunatic, written by a self-styled oracle whose motto is, proudly, “Often wrong, but never in doubt.” Who better to write about the presidency of Donald Trump?

The result, a 321-page account of every event of the Trump presidency, is the most confident account of its kind. From the start of Trump’s campaign through the beginning of 2020, Gullible’s Travels perfectly captures the unbridled mania of our commander-in-chief, chronicling 45’s first term with the affection, exhaustion, and blind denial of a parent determined to remain proud of their perpetually destructive child. Reader, you’ve never read anything like this. We can guarantee that.

“What this country needs is more Kitmans, fewer Trumps.”

—Dick Cavett, comedian and former TV talk show host

“Like every book by Marvin Kitman, this one will make you curl your hand into a fist and beat yourself in the head, hoping that will make you stop laughing. Don’t waste your time. Marvin is seriously funny. When they come to get you for laughing at political satire, you’ll be at the head of the line. Have fun.”

—Alan Alda, actor

“We will have from historians an abundance of accounts, but our Humorist Laureate, Marvin Kitman, has given us a rara avis, a scrupulously detailed comic history of The Trump Years.”

—Avery Corman, author of Kramer vs. Kramer

“Marvin Kitman is the funniest registered Republican ever to run for president, and when you read his hilarious new book, Gullible’s Travels, you will laugh until you weep. My only reservation is that it is subtitled ‘A Comical History of the Trump Era’ when in fact it deals seriously with such issues as whether Trump is a patriot or a traitor, closer to Hitler or Mussolini. Buy it, read it and decide for yourself.”

—Victor S. Navasky, author of Naming Names, former publisher of The Nation and Professor at Columbia University’s School of Journalism

Additional Praise for Marvin Kitman and Gullible's Travels

“So you think there’s nothing funny about the Trump era? Marvin Kitman, who once ran for president (and is still young enough to do so again) knows better. His new book is the perfect antidote to Trump Derangement Syndrome. Better to die laughing now than wait for the Trump apocalypse.”

—Harold Holzer, author of Presidents vs. the Press: From the Founding Fathers to Fake News

“The same investigative acuity that unearthed George Washington's Expense Account has been applied to our Gross National Bill for the Trump Administration. Read Marvin Kitman’s Gullible's Travels. You’ll laugh. You’ll cry. You’ll want your country back.”

—Dave Marash, radio host of Here & There with Dave Marash

“One of the funniest guys since Calvin Coolidge, the only Republican with the guts to take on Trump.”

—Larry Josephson, president of The Radio Foundation, Inc.

“In the world of the blind, the one-eyed man may not be king, but he probably is Marvin Kitman, pundit di tutti pundits. In Gullible's Travels, he uses his well-honed wit to survey the desolate landscape of Trump’s America, in search of pearls left behind by swine. Kitman paid me to say this.”
